As you have seen there has been some updated done to the website, I have been having some trouble getting the facebook page going but that is still being worked on and I am hoping it will be up by June for Convention so everyone that attends can get on it while they are there so they can bring it back to their post when they go back. There are more changes coming just waiting on the final go ahead. We are working on a new help page along with other updates. There is some clean up that will be going on but the update page is back up and running so you can go there and see everything that gets added or any modifications to the site will be documented there for easy follow up. If at any time if you have questions please reach out I will get back to you and if I don't have the answer right away I will get it for you in timely maner.
